ODOR DESCRIPTION:	Deep, earthy & musky Slightly peppery with a hint of bitterness.	Fresh, sweet & musky Lightly peppery with a soft floral hint.	Intensely pungent & sharp Mustard-like and eye-watering With sulfurous notes.	Warm, spicy, celery-like With a slightly medicinal and coumarin undertone.	Sweet, spicy, warm, with a distinct anise-like note and fresh green undertone.
AROMATIC DESCRIPTION:	Warm, herbaceous, and woody With nuances of spice and subtle green freshness. Often described as grounding and complex, with a dry, rooty undertone.	Lighter and more delicate than the root. Aromatic, slightly fruity-herbaceous with a dry spiciness. Considered more uplifting and crisp compared to the heavier root oil.	Very strong, penetrating, and volatile. Spicy-hot and radish-like, with a wasabi-type sensation. Used sparingly for its powerful, stimulating aroma.	Rich, herbaceous, and earthy with sweet balsamic nuances. Strongly reminiscent of celery and parsley, giving depth and intensity in aromatic blends.	Complex, balancing sweet and earthy tones With a characteristic "bready" and slightly peppery aroma. Fresh, digestive, and comforting.
